To be On Point, teens must be prepped and ready to make smart decisions about life. We empower teens to thrive through the following multifaceted and holistic programs:

Think On Point
Teens need the facts to be On Point. Think On Point is a six hour risk avoidance education curricula delivered in 52 area middle and high schools. The program is designed to decrease sexual activity and linked risk behaviors, while equipping youth to engage in positive, healthy relationships. On Point educators incorporate fundamental life skills to address pressing issues such as puberty, standard-setting, peer and media influences, decision making, healthy relationships, STDs and pregnancy.

Life On Point
Teens need support and concrete life skills to be On Point. Life On Point is a weekly "life education" course designed to give the support, accountability and skills students need to thrive. Life On Point is tailored to meet the needs of the small group and addresses academics, leadership, life skills, planning for the future, healthy lifestyle choices and avoidance of risk behaviors. Currently, Life On Point is offered in 16 area middle and high schools.

Teen Advisory Board
Teens need a voice to be On Point. The teen board is a diverse group of high school students living out the On Point message through leadership and service to others. Participants pledge to inspire and connect with teens, and to support them in making healthy choices and pursuing their dreams. During the year, the teen board meets monthly to discuss up-coming events, give input to new On Point programs, serve the community, support each other and have fun.
